NO CHANGE IN FACT.
Our neighbor, The Democrat, is desperately concerned lest the superior court shall be economically conducted. Departing from its usual assumed dignity it pronounces the honorable movement to reduce the cost of the court as "cheap and nasty." Without carefully considering the full significance of its utterance it declares:

There has been enough of this "cheap and nasty" nonsense from a little coterie of bilious politicians, aided by the class of biliousness which suffers from the administration of justice in the superior court.

The "bilious politicians" referred to are lawyers whom The Democrat frequently compliments, and the "cheap and nasty nonsense" is the sober judgment of at least three of the most distinguished and scholarly lawyers at the Kent bar and indorsed by every taxpayer.

But The Democrat affirms that these "bilious" politicians are aided by lawbreakers. Why should lawbreakers be interested in the subject? The proposed amendments do not abate one jot or tittle of the court's jurisdiction in relation to criminal business. The lawbreakers will still continue to face the reported terrors of this severe and unrelenting court. There might be a shadow of reason in claiming they would like to have the superior court, as well as all others, abolished, but it is difficult to understand how they would be interested in the present amendments.

There is no partisanship in the amendments. Many conscientious citizens believe the superior court to be a redundant tribunal. Yielding to a sentiment that exists in favor of retaining the court for municipal purposes they welcome the proposition to limit its jurisdiction and curtail expenses. The tribunal is too big for the city. It is a "one-horse" court in a large jurisdiction. The large jurisdiction enables it to justify extravagant expenditures. To cut off the superfluous jurisdiction and bring the court within the purview of the act creating it is the object of the amendments now proposed.

No interest of the people, no end of justice will be jeopardized by the change. The taxpayers will be saved several thousands of dollars. The change will amount to no change in fact; the court will continue to do all the business it ever was intended to do.

GRAND WATER.

When the spring freshet burst upon the Grand river the volume of water became immensely swollen and the rushing torrent carried in its embrace all the impurities it could gather along its route. These impurities befouled and discolored the water to such an extent that it became offensive to the eye and taste. Thereupon the vendors of pure spring water, with commendable enterprise, began to offer their services and soon the bottle trade became epidemic.

The continued service of water in bottles has aroused an unfriendly feeling toward the impure liquid that puris through the city by the way of the Grand, and some very unkind criticisms are being offered against its aqueous dignity. The water of the Grand river is not so positively bad as some persons would have it appear. The thirsty inhabitants of this city have tickled their throats with it year in and year out and no widespread, devastating disease has, in consequence, decimated our homes. The water is just as plentiful, just as pure and just as palatable as it was last year, or the year before.

The germs of cholera, the hateful miasma and the deadly bacillus are just as numerous, but not any more so as they have been since the water works were started. It is the essence of folly fully to talk about ever getting a better supply than Grand river anywhere this side of Lake Michigan. Ten thousand such wells as that in the Powers' arcade would be required to meet our demands. Probably no well system will ever be devised the capacity of which will be adequate to supply the constantly increasing demand.

Then why inveigh against the much abused Grand? Nobody will contend that it is the purest water in the world; but almost every practicable, disinfected hydraulic engineer declares it to be the purest water we can get without going to the lake.

HOWLS AT GROVER.
Iowa Democrats are as importunate and unbecomable as their Michigan brethren. They do not like the way Grover is dispensing official pap.

Neither do they like his recent utterances regarding office seekers in general. All Democrats have felt that Grover's voluntary attack upon the rectitude of their greed for office was harsh and hypocritical. Iowa Democrats are bold enough to say as much. The Des Moines Leader, the official organ of the state central committee, thus comments:

The president himself has been an office seeker all the way up from the petty office in his ward in Buffalo to the highest office in the world. The exclusion is not democratic. It is selfish and aristocratic. The appointments made outside while that rule is in force will be no better than if the president had come face to face with the applicants, but in consideration for the several thousand splendid democrats who are waiting his action we protest against the order. Such an order was a bad mistake. It is un-American and un-democratic.

This petulant howl of chagrin will fall echoing on the prairie air. Grover does not expect to be president after his present term ends. He has reached the goal of human ambition and is not a bit disturbed over such discordant yelps from unappeasable place seekers. Grover knows what he is about, and that great round neck of his was never made to bend to the behests of political cowards.

He will run his administration to suit himself. If the Democrats do not like it they will be at liberty to make a change in 1896. Hence the Democrats of Iowa and Michigan might as well put in their time baying at the moon as to snap and bark at the big fellow whom they have elevated to the presidency. If the pap doesn't flow fast enough they had better be content, else he may put a kink in the feed pipe and keep honest Republicans in office. And that wouldn't be a very bad idea, either.

SPRING LAKE was badly scorched yesterday. A spark from the steamer Barrett, a puny spark, fell on to combustibles and in a few hours the pretty village was laid waste. The loss is estimated at $125,000. It is probable that many of the burned buildings will be supplanted by better ones, and the town will again be a picturesque hamlet nestling close to the shores of the swashing Grand. It is gratifying that comparatively few poor persons suffered from the fire.

SENATOR BARNARD did a very graceful act in rescuing from defeat Senator Doran's bill permitting the sale of liquors on the grounds of the West Michigan Fair association. The bill is made necessary by reason of the one mile limit restriction of the Soldiers' home bill. The sale of liquors during the fair and at the races will in no wise expose the inmates of the Soldiers' home to greater temptation than already exists on the road leading to the home. If the bill becomes a law, as it ought to, the horsemen will erect a fine club house on the grounds.

Some time ago it was announced that Dan Campau had started an office seeker Bureau of Advancement, with headquarters in Washington. Nobody has been started by results. Now it is represented that Dan M. has called together a Patronage Triumvirate to parcel out the offices among the faithful. Up to date the Triumvirate seems to be doing all the business.

ILLINOIS Democrats now have a major key of only one in the legislature. They are badly frightened over the prospect of the failure of their legislative gerrymander bill and are up a stump on other partisan legislation. Death has invaded the legislature and whittled down the majority, and the Democrats are trying to get the better of the grim old reaper.

EMPEROR WILLIAM has 'em again. He threatens to enforce the army bill, whether the coming reichstag be willing or unwilling. William has all the blind stubbornness of a Caesar combined with the shortsightedness of a Louis. History is filled with the downfall of similar monarchs. William cannot prove an exception.

EVERYTHING else being duly weighed the piano making trade has had more gratuitous advertising in the Chicago papers than any one distinct class represented at the fair. The awful fuss made over Paderewski and Thomas has about reached itself back to its beginning, to the advantage of the piano makers only.

Two Chicago banks, the Chemical and Columbia, have closed their doors during the past few days without exciting the least apprehension in financial circles. Our business relations are too extensive and too flexible to permit any disastrous results from bank failures and stock panics.

MICHIGAN wheat is again in bad shape according to the crop report for May; but fortunately the man who compiles the crop reports and the man who issues the weather bulletins have a great many characteristics in common.

There is a practically unanimous sentiment in favor of reducing the enormous expense of the superior court, but at this writing there has not been filed a solitary protest against it.

MR. BARKWORTH was prompt to protest against the passage of the bill conferring the right to vote on the men who fought to save the Union and who live in the Soldiers' home.

MRS. LEASE has angered the Kansas populists by supporting a republican for office. Mrs. Lease occasionally has lived intervals that are a credit to her general intelligence.

WILLIAM W. TRACY, the newly elected president of the Republican League, is a native of Illinois and of the stock of republicanism from which Lincoln and Grant sprang.

MRS. MARY T. LATHRAP has again been elected president of the Michigan Woman's Temperance Union. It is her thirteenth election, but no squeamish superstitions will deter her from discharging the duties of the office with ability and success.

COMPLAINT is made that there are not enough police at the world's fair to guard the exhibits. That explains why the restaurant men are free to rob the public.

STATE PRESS SENTIMENT.

The iron mine owners state that they are unable to produce iron at a profit at the prices now prevalent. The mine at Ironwood in this state is the largest iron ore producer in the world, and on Monday it reduced its force so that the output will be half what it has been. Many other mines will soon shut down. We were told the tariff made these miners fabulously rich. But somehow the facts and democratic assertion do not dovetail.—Jackson Citizen.

The gates of the Columbian fair were closed last Sunday, and 60,000 people who wanted to visit it were turned loose upon the city with nothing to amuse them. The result was the worst saturnalia of drunkenness and petty crime that Chicago ever experienced, her police arrangements being utterly inadequate for the occasion.—Lansing Journal.

CARLYE W. HARRIS, who murdered his girl-wife by giving her poison, did not better his memory by the record which he left for publication, denying his guilt. The most charitable presumption is that he intended to comfort his mother, who believed him innocent.—Muskegon News.

Why not organize a mutual assistance between the physicians and the W. C. T. U.? The medical side of temperance is full of possibilities. Now is the time for an inter-state aqua pura commission mortgaging the future.—Muskegon Chronicle.

When it comes to an issue between Kentucky politics and Kentucky hospitality, it is safe to wager your small change on the latter every time.—Detroit Tribune.

POINTS ABOUT MEN.

DR. BEDDOE, United States consul at Ancon, writes that Ancon seems to such an extent with insect life that only his iron safe is left undamaged. "Almost every article of wood," the consul writes, "is bound sooner or later to be devoured by white ants."

ROBERT DORER, the famous Swiss sculptor, whose death occurred from heart disease in Berlin recently, had visited the German capital for medical treatment and expected soon to return to his home. He was 61 years old.

ARCHBISHOP FABRE of Montreal recently celebrated his twentieth episcopal anniversary, and it was participated in by the mayor and several members of the Quebec government.

STEPHEN A. NORTHWAY, congressman-elect from the nineteenth Ohio district, is six feet four and one-half inches in height, and the tallest man in the delegation.

SENATOR CALL of Florida is very fond of the theater. He is said to be unable to appreciate the funniest dialogue and never smiles at the most amusing climax.

OSCAR ROGERS of Albany claims to be the oldest fireman in the United States. He is 95 years of age and has been a fire fighter forty seven years.

C. B. FRY, who has just taken highest honors in the classics at Wadham college, Oxford, is the world's champion amateur broad jumper.

CARDINAL MANNING once told a young friend that "an English gentleman should read Horace and ride to hounds."

WARD McALLISTER is the name of a new foreman of the Santa Fe yards at Kansas City.

ALLEGED TO BE FUNNY.

"Look here," he said indignantly to the man with the hungry cow, "don't you see that Keep Off the Grass sign?"

"Yes."

"Well, yer cow's on the grass."

"I know it, mister," was the placid answer. "I know just as well as you do. You see, that cow can't read."—Washington Star.

JEWELER (grocer): I beg your pardon, but didn't I see you put two or three finger rings and a scarf pin in your pocket?

GROCCER: Certainly. When you come into my place again I always pick up things and putting them in your mouth.—Boston Transcript.

HICKS: The Rhode Island courts have decided that the father has the legal right to name the baby. What do you think of that?

MRS. HICKS: I think Rhode Island is about the smallest state in the Union.—New York Times.

PENLOPE: Have you seen Jack Dash lately?

PERDITA: About two weeks ago.

PENLOPE: Well, when you see him again remind him that we are engaged, will you, dear?—Life's Calendar.

The engaged girl is seldom known by the company she keeps. As a rule he doesn't get thoroughly acquainted with her until after they are married.—Buffalo Courier.

GLADYS: My mind is made up. Virginia, thank you. I know the rest of you was. Harvard Lampoon.

ROULETTE CHATS.

COL. W. R. SHAFER of the First regiment, United States army, is a guest in The Morton. He is in the city to visit Mrs. L. Avery, General Jones and other friends. Colonel Shaffer was at present stationed at San Francisco.

"There is not a thing of interest connected with military life at present," he said yesterday when he finished his lunch in The Morton cafe. "During thirty years of experience in army circles I do not remember of ever having seen it duller. There is absolutely no excitement whatever. There was a little trouble with the Navajo Indians a few weeks ago, and we thought at first that our regiment might possibly be called out, but the outbreak was of very short duration. The obstreperous Indians were soon subdued, and there was no occasion for ordering our regiment out there. There have been no other disturbances this year. The navy fellows have been having all the excitement this year. The review gave them all a chance to don their full dress uniforms, and show what a magnificent appearance they could present. The army has stood back and looked on." Colonel Shaffer will spend several days in the city before returning to his regiment.

JUDGE A. V. McALVAY of Manistee was a guest in The Morton yesterday. Judge McAlvay was one of the candidates for the nomination for justice of the supreme court at the republican convention held here last fall. He was backed by Manistee county, and received sixty-four votes on the first ballot. It was believed by his friends that in case the Cahill and Hooker factions deadlocked Judge McAlvay would capture the nomination. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and is one of the most popular lawyers in northern Michigan. He is still a young man and will be heard from in some subsequent judicial convention. His republicanism is of the stalwart type and his ability is unquestioned.

"Every agricultural implement dealer in the country is surprised at the trade," said G. W. King of Jackson in the New Livingston. "Last evening 'Nobody' thought the trade would amount to anything, but, as a matter of fact, it has doubled. It was the general belief that the farmer would save all his money to go to the world's fair. All of them are going, but they're buying farm machinery faster than ever. The only way I account for it is that they have heard of the prices charged at the fair, and have decided that they must raise bigger crops in order to have enough money to see the show."

FRANK H. IRISH of the New Livingston will go to Spring Lake this morning to look after the resort hotel there, which he and his uncle, Ed. H. Irish, are managing this season. The hotel was not damaged by the fire yesterday, and Mr. Irish does not believe the disaster will exercise any particular effect upon the season's business.

C. F. GRAWN of Traverse City dined in the New Livingston yesterday. Mr. Grawn is superintendent of the Traverse City schools, and is recognized as one of the leading educators in the state.

JOHN J. FOSTER, Miss Kittie Foster and Miss Maude Foster, constitute a party of Greenville tourists who arrived in The Morton last night.

C. F. KERRY, one of Reed City's leading grocers, took dinner in The Kent yesterday, while in the city on a little business trip.

A. J. GOODING of Gooding in the New Livingston. Mr. Gooding virtually owns the town, and is in the city buying goods.

J. FRANK CLARK, a Big Rapids lumber manufacturer, was among yesterday's arrivals in the New Livingston.

MORTON—T. C. Hertzler, Albas; A. V. McAlvay, Manistee; George E. Dowling, Montague; J. Aarons and wife, Manistee; A. Arntz-Muskegon; O. B. Law, Detroit.

SWEET—G. M. Cooper, Saginaw; James O'Brien, Big Rapids; Charles M. Elliott, Detroit; L. V. Davis, Fremont; V. Petersly, Traverse City; A. Nichols, Charlevoix.

NEW LIVINGSTON—C. T. Grawn, Traverse City; D. S. Hayes and wife, Manistee; N. Kenney, Ionia; E. G. Johnson, Luther; W. W. William, Detroit; A. Miles and wife, Benton Harbor.

EAGLE—Frank Greenman, Owosso; J. W. Parker, Lowell; Harry Kellman, Detroit; B. H. Spencer, Benton Harbor; W. S. Chopin and wife, Ionia.

KENT—R. Goodrich, Traverse City; C. T. Kerry, Reed City; D. W. Calkins, Mead; George E. Gunn, Lansing; C. H. Baker, Bay City; J. B. Goodale, Muskegon.

SEEING THE FAIR.

It Will Cost Michigan Citizens at Least $10,000,000 in Good Money.

Several days ago an editorial in The Herald referred to Michigan's financial tribute to the world's fair. It was then estimated that the people of the Wolverine state would expend at least $10,000,000 in seeing the great exposition. It is believed that these figures are far too low, and that almost twice that sum will flow from the pockets of Michigan citizens before the fair has ended. It is estimated that at least one-fifth of the population of the state will attend the exposition, in all about 400,000 persons. If the railroad fare averages $3 each, this will make $1,200,000 as the total expense of transportation. This is only a fraction of the amount that will be expended, and it is questionable if the average citizen will not amount to $5. At the lowest estimate it will be necessary to spend $20 a week to see the fair. Allowing each visitor seven days at the exposition, this would mean $8,000,000, and would place the total expense of the state at $9,200,000.

At a present only a few persons are going to the exposition, and the railroads do not anticipate very heavy travel until about June 1. It is the opinion of railroad officials that there will be about 130 days of world's fair traffic. The Grand Trunk and the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee roads estimate that they will carry about 500 persons per day during the 130 days' travel. The Michigan Central and Lake Shore place their average daily number of passengers at 2,000. The Wabash people think they will carry 200 per day, and 600 is a fair average for the G. R. & I. and C. & W. M. railroads.

Experience derived from the Centennial and the New Orleans exposition leads to the belief that the greatest number of persons will attend the fair during September and the first part of October. During the rest of the season the best men expect to assist in reaping the harvest. Many excursions by water are being arranged for. Even Detroit, Port Huron and Saginaw vessel owners expect to do a good passenger business for Chicago during the warmer parts of the summer.

There has been no cutting of rates yet, and there probably will not be if the business comes up to the expectations. The present rate, and the one which the roads hope to maintain is 80 per cent of the regular fare. But if the summer roads find that they are not getting their share of the travel, and that their rolling stock is not in full use, the rates may be cut by them and the other roads will be forced to follow suit. Of course there will be cheap excursions run and the established prices will in no way be affected by them.

As to the time that will be spent at the fair, no body expects to stay less than a week, and many will stay two or three weeks. Perhaps it will not cost some of the visitors more than $5 or $6 during their visit, but others will expend $500. To place the average expenditures at $20 a week is conservative in the extreme, and only a skillful economist will be able to spend six days at the exposition for that amount.

Dropped Her Garter.

She was a blonde and was as pretty as the first marsh marigold of a belated spring. The rain was coming down in sheets and columns, and the graceful bit of feminine loveliness was tripping her way across Campau square. One hand was devoted to her navy blue street gown, which she held above the dirty water of the pavement, disclosing an inch or two of dainty silken stocking above the top of the close-fitting boot. The other hand was making an ineffectual attempt to manage a wayward umbrella which the driving west wind buffeted and twisted in every direction. Suddenly the maiden stopped still in the midst of the pouring rain and gave a half articulated cry. The loungers in the lobby of Sweet's became interested. She lowered the hem of her gown for an instant and moved her foot uneasily. The rain drops beat upon her new spring bonnet and dashed against her pretty face and throat. She raised again and blushed. The carnation of her cheeks deepened as she surveyed a dainty silken something which lay half concealed in the muddy water of the street. At either end of the silken string was a silver clasp, adorned with two bells of deepest red. The delicate red of the ribbon was soiled by the blackened liquid in which it lay. It was the maiden's garter. Hastily picking it up, she concealed it in the palm of her little hand. Then she walked rapidly in the direction of a well known dry goods store, but no portion of her pretty loveliness was longer visible to the loungers in the lobby.

FOR THE THIRTEENTH TIME.

Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap is Elected President of the State W. C. T. U.

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 11.—Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap of Jackson was re-elected president of the Michigan W. C. T. U. for the thirteenth time at this morning's session of convention. She received 111 of 123 votes cast and the secretary was instructed to cast the ballot of the convention for Mrs. Lathrap. The recommendation raising the state dues from 20 cents to 25 cents was carried. After the president had thanked the convention for the honor conferred upon her, she moved that $10 per month be paid from the state treasury until the $150 deficit be wiped out on the Grand Rapids Woman's home and hospital. Carried. A motion to name the new building being erected at Hackley park "Mary T. Lathrap hall," was carried. After the election of Mrs. Julia R. Parish of Bay City as corresponding secretary the convention adjourned.

STATE MEDICS MEET.

Nearly One Hundred of Them Discuss Disease and Cures.

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 11.—Dr. G. N. Chamberlain of Flint, called the Michigan State Medical society to order in Muskegon this morning at 11 o'clock, seventy-five members being present. L. N. Keating welcomed the society in behalf of Mayor Torrey. The secretary's annual report showed the society to be out of debt, and he advised that a regular plan be adopted for the making of it a program. Treasurer W. G. Henry of Detroit reported $250.44 on hand, with 101 members in arrears for dues; 519 members were in good standing. In the afternoon minor business was transacted. Tomorrow the members will visit Hackley park.

Walker and Campbell Honored.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 11.—This morning the fine life-size oil paintings of Judges I. C. Walker and J. B. Campbell were hung along side that of Judge Cooley on the walls of the law lecture room. These three constitute the original faculty of the law college. Judge C. B. Grant made the presentation speech in behalf of the alumni. Brief addresses were made by President Angell, Dean Knowlton, Prof. Griffin and Judge Cooley.

Very Humane Musicians.

DETROIT, Mich., May 11.—The National League of Musicians were in session ten hours today, but did little business. The one important action taken was on the resolution offered yesterday in favor of keeping out foreign "contract" musicians. The resolution was unanimously voted down on the ground of humanity. Baltimore was selected as the next place of meeting. The election of officers will take place tomorrow.

Did He Eat Rat Poison?

DETROIT, Mich., May 11.—Joseph Pease, aged 46, mixed some poison yesterday with which to exterminate rats. During the afternoon he got considerably under the influence of liquor, and last night became violently ill. A doctor was sent for, but Pease died without regaining consciousness.

Electric Physicians Elect Officers.

LANSING, Mich., May 11.—The state electric physicians have elected the following officers: President, C. Edson Covey, Port Huron; vice presidents, J. D. Crum, Owosso; C. H. Lamoreaux, Fowlerville; Dr. May V. Cosford, Manistota; secretary, Z. L. Baldwin, Lawrence.

Plum for Detroit Men.

WASHINGTON, Mich., May 11.—President Cleveland determined upon two important Detroit appointments today, viz: James Phelan for collector of internal revenue to succeed James H. Stone, and Lena A. Treadwell for appraiser of customs at Detroit, to succeed C. F. Kimball.

Primary School Money.

LANSING, Mich., May 11.—Deputy State Treasurer Baxter today paid out about $200,000 primary school moneys. Kent county receiving in the neighborhood of $2,000. Kent county's taxes were due March 10 and they have not yet been received by the state treasurer.

Held for Murder.

DETROIT, Mich., May 11.—Coroner Brown's jury in the case of Charles Grise, who was shot early last Sunday morning, returned a verdict that he came to his death from a bullet wound inflicted by Michael Welch, who is held for his murder.

Fell From a Trolley Wagon.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., May 11.—William Swartz was knocked off a trolley wagon today morning. He lies unconscious and may die. He lives in Schoolcraft.

Michigan Pensions.

Original Edwin Porter. Additional—George B. Tyler, Increase—Stewart Carlton, Solomon Suttile, Henri Gillespie, Reuben—William Bell, J. A. Newfang, Robert Hastings, Henry C. Wheeler (original), widow, etc.—Ruth A. Turner, Elizabeth Hastings, Ann E. Moore, Estella McDermid.

Clifford Cooley, a 4-year old Lansing toddler, was badly bitten about the face by a building yesterday.

YES, you have thought seriously during the past few days of putting on lighter Underwear.

Have you considered where to purchase? Where the largest and best varieties are shown, providing prices are right?

That is where we conquer all competition. Make your choice with a price ranged from 25c a garment up.

Light weight Balbriggan Underwear, fancy ribbed Merino Underwear, summer weight Wool Underwear, silk finish Balbriggan Underwear, extra fine Gauze Underwear, Jean Drawers with Jersey Anklets, fine Cassimeres and Natural Mixtures, English Balbriggan Underwear. We will stop here. The list would crowd the column.

TO SLEEP, TO REST

Perchance to dream. Aye, there's the rub. For when we've laid aside the burdens of the day and in the arms of Morpheus seek repose, what dreams of petty household cares may come must give us pause.

PAUSE!
